

Cory Ingram

New York

Cory Ingram designer, artist and entertainer is a native Texan living and working in New York. Long interested in found objects his work combines and contrasts consumerism and retail presentation with social topicality. Cory Ingram attended University of North Texas and graduated with a degree in fine art. His work has been curated by the Dallas Museum of Art's Susan Weaver and The Nasher Sculpture Centre. He has worked in conjunction with most of the leading global fashion brands, and the sensibilities of this world are finely mixed with his own perceptions of them to create objects that question the role of brands and consumerism in our lives.
